Policing Practices and Citywide Practices:

Policing Practice #1: Public contact data collection and trend analysis

Potential Areas of Concern to Address:

- Department-focused activities & priorities: Where Patrol time is spent on what kind of activities.
- Currently no statistical data analysis, internally or externally. For external research, need to address the research questions to pose (broader than just “what are the contacts?”)
- How often do we want to report on RIPA information once it begins to be collected? Is there other data, beyond statutory requirements, that we might be interested in collecting?

City Council Options to Consider:

- Providing policy direction on the prioritization of types of enforcement activity
- Resourcing the Police Department to ensure data is available and accurate (staff and software)
- Ensuring personally identifiable info-redacted contact data is available on the Open Data Portal
- Reporting annually on RIPA data and on some regular frequency for outside study of the data
Policing Practices and Citywide Practices

Policing Practice #3: Officer conduct investigations and transparency

Potential Areas of Concern to Address:
- Are we doing enough auditing?
- What other options for transparency might there be? And when does the public get case information?
- Report out on complaints and reportable uses of force: need to start doing it? How often?

City Council Options to Consider:
- Expanded role for District Attorney, Attorney General, IPA or others for case review
- Parameters for disclosure (upon conclusion of administrative interview, materials can be released)
- Add reportable uses of force data to the regular report that comes to City Council that already includes IPA work regarding complaints, IIRs and HR investigations
The Transparency and Accountability Ad Hoc met with the City’s IPA and wanted to advance the conversation to the full City Council to understand the work done by the IPA and other opportunities to further increase transparency.
